Dear Colleagues,

July has arrived. The academic year is over. The summer months offer us some relaxation ('some' is the key word here) as we all use them not only to make up for lost time and catch up on things we did not complete during the academic year, but also for quality time.

It is true that demands and challenges in today's university environment are increasing, and this means that our plate is more than full. However, there is no substitute to the satisfaction research initiatives, novelties, results offer to us. It is this line I am using to motivate you to submit your contribution to the Journal, make the readers aware of what you have accomplished. We, the Editorial Board members, will make every effort to provide a timely decision.

I encourage you to grab this opportunity, and submit your work. In the mean time, enjoy the issue.

Editor-in-Chief
