

Professor Bezalel Peleg

It is with great satisfaction that I present this special issue in honor of Professor Bezalel Peleg, a prominent, leading game theorist. His enormous contributions to various topics in game theory, detailed in the following bibliography written by the two editors of this issue, are in striking contrast to his modest personality. Having the privilege of being his co-author and friend, I have first-hand evidence that Bezalel Peleg is not only a deep and prolific researcher, but also an extremely modest and pleasant person. I wish him many more years of fruitful research to the great benefit of game theory.

I am very grateful to Peter Sudhölter and Hans Peters for initiating and editing this fine issue.
